Specification

1. The objection to the specification in the Office action mailed 30 November 2006 is withdrawn in view of the amendment and computer readable form filed 09 February 2007.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 1-21 are drawn to a process, an apparatus for executing the process, and a program for executing the process. A statutory process must include a step of a physical transformation, or produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result (State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Financial Group Inc. CAFC 47 USPQ2d 1596 (1998), AT&T Corp. v. Excel Communications Inc. (CAFC 50 USPQ2d 1447 (1999))). In the instant claims, there is no step of physical transformation, thus the Examiner must determine if the instant claims include a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

As noted in State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Financial Group Inc. CAFC 47 USPQ2d 1596 (1998) below, the statutory category of the claimed subject matter is not relevant to a determination of whether the claimed subject matter produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result:

The question of whether a claim encompasses statutory subject matter should not focus on which of the four categories of subject matter a claim is directed to 2-- process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter--but rather on the essential characteristics of the subject matter, in particular, its practical utility. Section 101 specifies that statutory subject matter must also satisfy the other "conditions and requirements" of Title 35, including novelty, nonobviousness, and adequacy of disclosure and notice. See In re Warmerdam, 33 F.3d 1354, 1359, 31 USPQ2d 1754, 1757-58 (Fed. Cir. 1994). For purpose of our analysis, as noted above, claim 1 is directed to a machine programmed with the Hub and Spoke software and admittedly produces a "useful, concrete, and tangible result." Alappat, 33 F.3d at 1544, 31 USPQ2d at 1557. This renders it statutory subject matter, even if the useful result is expressed in numbers, such as price, profit, percentage, cost, or loss.

In determining if the claimed subject matter produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result, the Examiner must determine each standard individually. For a claim to be "useful," the claim must produce a result that is specific, and substantial. For a claim to be "concrete," the process must have a result that is reproducible. For a claim to be "tangible," the process must produce a real world result. Furthermore, the claim must be limited only to statutory embodiments.

Claims 1-21 do not produce a tangible result. A tangible result requires that the claim must set forth a practical application to produce a real-world result. This rejection could be overcome by amendment of the claims to recite that a result of the method is outputted to a display or a memory or another computer on a network, or to a user, or by including a physical transformation.

4. Claim 20, as amended in the amendment filed 09 February 2007 is now drawn to a program on computer readable medium and is therefore not a program per se, but remains rejected under 35 U.S. C. 101 for the reason discussed above.

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1-21 are indefinite for recitation of the phrases “an identification step for forming probe candidates” or “an identifying step for forming probe candidates” in claims 1, 2, 6, 18, and 19, and “forming probe candidates” in claim 14. It is unclear if the phrases refer to outputting of data, or a step of synthesizing a polynucleotide.

Claims 6, 7, 18, and 19 are indefinite for recitation of the phrase “a searching step for searching for partial base sequences, which are used to identify probe candidates without having to search entire base sequences” because it is not clear what sequence data is searched nor is it clear if the claimed subject matter includes searching entire base sequences.

7. Claim 8 is indefinite for recitation of the phrase “shifting a start position” because it is not clear what the phrase means relative to the claimed subject matter.

Response to Arguments

8. The rejection under 35 U.S.C. 101 has been maintained because the claims do not produce a tangible result. The applicants are encouraged to amend the claims in the manner suggested in the rejection to make explicit that a result is produced by the method (and apparatus that executes the method) that is readily accessible to a user.

9. The rejections under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph have been modified and maintained in view of the amendment for the reasons noted above.
